

Angels “Satan, the Evil One”

Ezekiel 28:11-19; Isaiah 14:12-15

The king of Tyre and the king of Babylon are regarded as a representative (type) or incarnation of Satan, thus, while the words were spoken to the kings, they are undoubtedly intended for Satan, who is the instigator of their sin.

“Satan is under a perpetual curse, his conquest was secured at the cross, he is destined to be cast out of the heavenlies, confined in the abyss and finally consigned to the lake of fire.”

“Elemental Theology” Emory H. Bancroft p.336

“At the same time, we are told that the Christian possesses a power that is not inherent to our humanity, but a power that is stronger than Satan, and it is the power of the Holy Spirit. We are told, “He who is in you is greater than he who is in the world” (I John 4:4b). So, when we are covered with the whole armor of God and have the indwelling Holy Spirit, we have the power to resist Satan and to overcome him. . . . God is our fortress, reminding us that He is our great strength and our defense against Satan, against a world that is filled with devils that threaten to undo us. But God has given us the power of His Word, the power of the truth, the power of the Spirit, through which we can overcome these forces of hell.” “Unseen Realities” R.C. Sproul p.147
